

December Platforms
Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture
53 Prospect Park West at 2nd St.

An Ethic By Workers, For Workers
with Ken Estey

Sunday, December 6, 11am

During the economic downturn, employers are asking their staff to work harder and display a better work ethic. Rather than allowing these pressures to divide us from one another, what can we learn from plywood workers in Moncure, North Carolina who just won an 8-month strike having created a surprising vision for their own work ethic based on their unity against company efforts to destroy their union. Ken Estey was trained at Union Theological and teaches political science at Brooklyn College.

1pm: Post-Platform Discussion – How Are We Faring? The faltering economy is not something “out there” but is affecting us all. How are we faring and what does solidarity mean to us in tough times? Sponsored by the Ethical Action Committee.

Defending the Separation of Church and State with Jason Stewart

Sunday, December 13, 11am

Religious conservatives who seek to make this a Christian nation are as active as ever. We'll hear the latest from the front lines with Jason Stewart, the president of the New York chapter of Americans United for the Separation of Church and State.

Winter Festival
with the Children's Sunday Assembly

Sunday, December 20, 11am

Join the Children's Sunday Assembly for an intergenerational festival with music and storytelling to illuminate the season. People are invited to bring in photos or any object that is meaningful to them this time of year to help spark their storytelling imagination!

Colloquy
Sunday, December 27, 11am

Colloquies are an opportunity for deep group reflection on a theme.

Sunday Platforms are a long-standing tradition within Ethical Culture to bring light and heat to matters of ethical concern in a formal setting. Every Sunday, platforms examine major ethical issues and explore the personal and social aspects of living an ethical life.